Investment Objectives

The principal objective is the growth of capital in excess of benchmarks and to preserve capital throughout an economic cycle. The management team takes an opportunistic approach to investing while employing a broad range of strategies to diversify the portfolio and drive results on a consistent basis.

Investment Strategy

The portfolio has an event-driven focus, wherein catalysts are identified that will likely have an impact on a company's stock price or capital structure. Throughout an economic cycle, different strategies will provide more favourable risk/reward trade-offs, permitting opportunities for reallocating capital. Fundamental analysis is the cornerstone of the team's skill set, but the investment strategies include: merger arbitrage, convertible arbitrage, high yield debt, capital structure arbitrage, fundamental longs, shorts, options and other special situations.

Second Quarter Commentary

Samuel Beckett's play from the 1950's, Waiting for Godot, is what our investment results have felt like this year. The anticipation is there, but we've yet to be rewarded with our repositioned portfolio. Over the last 6 months the Vertex Fund hasn't seen much love in terms of flat returns – though our 1 Year return still shows a strong 7.84%.

We have converted our largest position, Franco Nevada warrants, to common shares. Franco now holds a more modest weight of 4% within the portfolio. On a delta basis, the Vertex Fund's new largest position is AIG warrants, though the actual weight in the portfolio is slightly less than 5%. Since its bankruptcy during the financial crisis, AIG International Group has had its share of CEOs. Apart from one CEO who unfortunately died prematurely, none have truly understood the company in which they steered, until now. Brian Duperreault became the new president and CEO of AIG in May of 2017. In only the first few weeks of his position he followed through with buying five million dollars worth of shares in AIG (in addition to the options he received in his remuneration package). Like Jamie Dimon's prescient purchase of J.P. Morgan's shares near the bottom, we like CEOs who eat their own cooking. With a stock that currently trades at around $65, which is $35 below its $100 book value. We believe the company will earn $10 per share by 2019, so a 12x multiple on those earnings will lead to an AIG stock price such that the AIG warrants we own will triple in value over the next two years.
